

Holding a meeting on human rights is not a terrorist conspiracy

10 July 2017

On 5 July 2017, ten participants in a human rights training meeting were detained at Büyükada, one of the Princes' Islands near İstanbul, Turkey. The group consisted of eight representatives of Turkish civil society organisations working on human rights and two foreign consultants on digital security and information management. By the afternoon of July 6, the lawyers of the detained persons learned that their clients are being investigated for membership of an armed organization, a terrorist offense, and will stay in investigative detention initially for seven days.

The undersigned organisations, national and international human rights NGOs from the OSCE region, members of the Civic Solidarity Platform, strongly reject this operation by the Turkish authorities. We appeal for the immediate and unconditional release of the detained persons, participants in a peaceful meeting to advance human rights. Human rights work should not be criminalized. Civil society work for human rights is an important contribution to a healthy society. Holding a meeting on human rights is not a terrorist conspiracy.

The Turkish citizens arrested are Özlem Dalkıran (Helsinki Citizens' Assembly), lawyer Nalan Erkem (Helsinki Citizens' Assembly), İlknur Üstün (Women's Coalition), İdil Eser (Amnesty International Turkey director), Veli Acu (Human Rights Agenda Association), lawyer Günel Kurşun (Human Rights Agenda Association), Şeymus Özbekli (Rights Initiative), and Nejat Taştan (Equal Rights Watch Association). The two consultants are Ali Gharawi, from Sweden, and Peter Steudtner, from Germany.

In the past years, human rights defenders have on several occasions been targeted by governmental repression. This latest attack on human rights defenders comes amidst a wave of repression after the failed coup attempt of 15 July 2016 which has affected a much wider group of persons than those who may have been directly involved in the coup attempt, including journalists, lawyers and politicians. Only last month, Taner Kiliç, the president of Amnesty International Turkey, was arrested together with 22 other lawyers.
